Lt. R. L. Whittingham Wounded in France

Lt. Rupert L. Whittingham, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. L. Whittingham, 314 W. Fifth street, has been wounded in action in France, according to a letter he wrote to his mother.

Mrs. Whittingham received the letter today. It states that Lt. Whittingham had a head wound consisting of deep lacerations, and was now hospitalized in England. Lt. Whittingham was called to service in May, 1942, and was first stationed at Fort Sheridan, Ill. He was transferred to Fort McClellan, Ala., and while there served as an instructor in the use of weapons. He arrived in England about June 1 and had written home from France under date of July 10. The letter received today was written July 20.

able to hear his words—5000 men calmly summed up to the 500 men crowded around him the internal crisis in Germany:

"... Opposite you is an enemy whose central power is crumbling." (Churchill's return to Britain was announced yesterday in London.)

Standing in this Allied bridge-head only a few miles from the line of Allied guns, the Prime Minister told the eager group before him:

"Men of the Typhoon Squadron and other squadrons: It is very jolly for me to drop down in this attractive machine. It reminds me of the ones I flew 30 years ago, except it has all the advantages and none of the disadvantages."

The group chuckled as everybody looked first at Churchill and then at the little plane.

Lauds Air Forces
"I find you here on the soil of France which has at once been seized and liberated," the Prime Minister continued gravely.

Churchill went on to speak of the great and unprecedented part the Air Forces played in the invasion and since, in an "extraordinary plan the like of which never has been seen before and the extent of which the enemy does not even dream now."

Speaking of the recent attempt on Hitler's life, Churchill said with an acid grin:

"They missed the old bouncer (this was roughly his epithet)—but there's time yet.

"There is a very great disturbance in the German machine. Think how you would feel if there was a revolution at home (in England) and they were shooting at Cabinet Ministers."

Outlook Cheerful
Churchill went on to declare—to men who cheered him loudly all through the short speech—that the Germans were being "hunted" from the air, that the Russians were rolling up on them from the east, and that Gen. Sir Harold Alexander's Armies were moving up in Italy.

"We may hope the war will be won soon," he said. Then he added with broadly humorous tone and gesture, "Within two or three years I have never promised anything."
He saluted the RAF, saying it "played a noble part first in the salvation of the country in 1940 and ever since in gaining fresh honor." Then he concluded—a stout, resolute figure, solemnly confident—

"Victory is certain. I cannot tell when. Carry on the good work and God's blessing on you and the best of good luck."

COMMITTEE ORGANIZED TO OPERATE IN POLAND

London (AP)—Establishment of a Committee of National liberation to take over civil administration in Russian-liberated areas of Poland under the Polish National Council was announced over the week end by the Moscow radio, and immediately it drew the fire of the Polish government-in-exile in London.

A spokesman for the exile government described the Liberation Committee as a "body of left wing against Hitler despite the SS and Gestapo."

Setbacks in Poland
Korten was appointed chief of staff of the German Air Force in August, succeeding the late Gen. Hans Jeschonnek. He apparently was close to Hitler, as accompanying him on a tour of the Atlantic wall defense last April.

The Germans announced grave new reverses in Poland placing the Russian army within 50 miles of Warsaw. Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden said events inside the Reich "seem to show that experienced German generals have set the writing on the wall." By German and Russian accounts, three more generals died in action in the east and a fourth joined the swelling ranks of those in prison cages.

The German radio exhorted it home front to "mobilize to the last strength" and asserted "no one has the right to live, not even breathe, who does not carry arms or forge them."

Morale Weakens
The Berlin correspondent Tidningh of Stockholm said the Germans had acknowledged recruiting and supply for the fronts had bogged down because of "bureaucracy in the staff of the German home Army," the command of which was assumed by Himmler shortly after a bo searched and scratched Hitler's weak.

While German Army morale appeared badly shaken, there was concrete evidence yet of any effect in the front lines. The Nazis clearly were still in full control both of the Army and Germany itself.

Reports from France picturing Adolf Hitler's purge of rebellious Army officers as having spread the fighting fronts in Germany France and possibly Italy. The reports said eight eastern front commanders were arrested, and that Gestapo agents had arrested and possibly executed German divisional leaders in France and seized Field Marshal Albert Kesselring, the German Army commander in Italy. A report said Gen. Johannes von Sodenacht her Korte German Army commander in Italy. A report said Gen. Johannes von Sodenacht her Korte German Army commander in Italy. A report said Gen.
