League Batting Champ With Average of .511 Bill Herman, Tribune-WFHR pitcher, won the coveted individual batting championship of the Junior Victory Baseball league for the 1944 season with the remarkable average of .511. Herman's slugging team mate. Robert Klein, finished second with the fine mark of .489 while Jim Klappa, hard-hitting Prentiss-Wabers infielder-pitcher, was close on Klein's heels with a lusty .486 figure. Four-Way Battle

Four players battled nip-and-tuck throughout most of the season for the batting title. They were the three aforementioned players and Catcher Robert Gazeley of Kruger's, who ended up with a .442 mark. Gazeley led during the first part of the season, then Klein assumed the leadership at the midway point. Klappa gained the top rung down the stretch and seemed destined to cop the title until Tribune-WFHR's final game of the campaign, when Herman slammed out four hits and drew a pass to send his average soaring over Klappa and Klein to .511. Klein also passed Klappa in his team's last tilt by hitting safely twice.

Herman, slim left handed batter who hit to all fields but especially poured out safe blows through the left side of the infield, also topped the league's sluggers in number of hits, with 23 and in runs scored,

How about the September battle trated on his young linemen. . . at in 1918 when the Yankees and the Northwestern, 19 civilian players Red Sox were locked in a struggle for the flag? Boston won.

The Red Sox took the title by the narrow margin of a circumstance; a wild pitch by Jack Chesbro of New York in the first game of a doubleheader with Boston, which went on to the pennant by a length and a half.

And how about the September of 1922-the year the Browns and the Yanks fought right down to the wire, with New York winning out by one game.

Perhaps the standout case of September strain in the National Playoffs in 008. That was the year of the very important game from the Cubs Association -but just as the triumphant run crossed the rubber, Fred Merkle dashed from first to the clubhouse. Fred, who was on first, ignored second base. Umpire Hank O'Day nullified the winning run, the game was replayed, and the Cubs won the Cubs captured the pennant.
