SLIGHTLY WOUNDED

Stevens Point — Sgt. Alois J. Wisman of this city was slightly wounded in action in France on September 9, according to word received from the war department.

Fighting Men Like Those Cut Off In Holland Can Not Be 'Rescued'

U. S. STRIKES BACK AT MANILA—Circled is the Manila-Cavite area where U. S. carrier planes of the navy destroyed at least 205 Japanese planes and eleven warships.

It is hardly proper to refer to the impending "rescue" of the British airborne troops at Arnheim. You don't rescue men who, deliberately assigned to a difficult post, stand and slug regardless of odds. You don't rescue men who laugh and curse the enemy's surrender suggestions.

Nor, strictly speaking, is the advancing British Second army a "relief" column. It may have that effect on the encircled airborne troops. But technically the whole operation is part of an offensive, deliberately planned so that General Brereton's air army could help clear the way for the main armies in their advance across the Holland water barriers. The Second army is heading for the capture of Arnheim and the invasion of the German Ruhr. It's not a "relief" job.

There is a difference between the air army which deliberately put itself in the German circle and an army which has walked into a trap. Sunday, Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday, Thursday, Friday, Saturday, a week, every day longer than the last, every man a target for German field pieces which can be countered only with comparatively light equipment which could be flown in.

A correspondent with them writes of the German surrender broadcast: "It was a silly thing to do. It made these chaps hopping mad. You should have heard their language." And another writes, "and though our men, some of them, are hard put to it not to fall asleep over their guns, they go on fighting and go on attacking and one day perhaps the world will learn the full story of what they have done here." Men fighting unflinchingly for their objective, fulfilling their orders. Men the world will cheer when their support arrives. But not men to be "rescued."

New War Office Will Guide Other Agencies, Nation Back to Peace

WASHINGTON (AP)—The new office of war mobilization and reconversion—to be set up under the bill passed by congress this week—will be the guide through the home front jungle leading back to peace.

The director of OWMR—when he is named—will be boss over the government agencies that have anything to do with changing this country over to a peacetime economy. Bosses Three Agencies But specifically he will be boss over these three agencies, all created by congress for reconversion: 1. The office of contract settlement. This agency will handle the cancellation of war contracts. 2. The surplus property board which will have to dispose of more than 100 billion dollars worth of surplus war property. This three-man board, created by congress, will succeed the surplus war property administration which was created by the retaining and reemployment administration. His job is to coordinate all the efforts of government agencies which deal with retraining and reemployment.

The director of OWMR also will be responsible for planning and for keeping congress informed of reconversion progress. Congress laid down this rule for OWMR: any plant able to reconvert to peacetime work should be permitted, to whether or not other firms in the same field are still doing war work. This has been a sore point for months. For some business men contend it's unfair to let one firm get a head start on its competitors after the war.

Here are some of the other main provisions in the act creating OWMR: The federal government will help out states hard hit by paying out unemployment compensation to jobless workers. How It Will Work This, in a general way, is how it will work: States operate their own unemployment compensation systems. The money, however, goes into a government trust fund. The states draw from that fund as they need it. Now there is about 5 1/2 billion dollars in the fund. There will be many jobless after the war. So the states will have to dip into their share of that fund. When those payments drag a state's share down below a certain level, the government will step in to help out with a loan.

Democracy Has One More Chance Wallace Asserts

Troy, N.Y.—(AP)—When the war is over this country will have "one more chance to prove that our form of government is best," declares Vice President Henry A. Wallace. Wallace, speaking last night at a rally sponsored by a united labor committee for Roosevelt, asserted "there is one more opportunity to show that free enterprise is progress" and added: "After this war there will not be unemployment in Russia. We've got to do as well as they. We must do better or else step back."

If, after the war, "we have unemployment or if we drop our standard of living," he said, "remember that the people affected will not stand for it. They took it once after the last war, but they know now that it is unnecessary and that it can be prevented." He called for a strong liberal party to unite farmers, working men and business men "into a single group for a single purpose," avoiding "dastardly" influences which he said Republicans used in the past to set farmers against workers and both against industry.

Wounds Are Fatal To Pvt. Ira E. Heinen

Junction City—Pvt. Ira E. Heinen, a member of a marine raider unit and eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. Ed Heinen of Eau Claire, died of wounds received in action in the south Pacific area, according to word received by his parents from the navy department. Heinen, who was 38, had served with the marines since September 23, 1943. Following training for three months at San Diego, Calif., he served in the Solomons, the Marshalls and at Saipan.

UNIONS INDORSE FDR New York—(AP)—President Roosevelt and U. S. Sen. Robert F. Wagner (D-NY) yesterday were endorsed for reelection by the central trades and labor council, representing the American federation of labor unions in New York City. A minimum of 90 days will be needed by automobile manufacturers to get ready for civilian production after the war.

AMERICAN SLAVS BACK ROOSEVELT

Pittsburgh—(AP)—Leo Krzycki, president of the American Slav congress, in his keynote address to 2,500 delegates at their second annual convention today called for the reelection of President Roosevelt as "an imperative national necessity." An excerpt of his address released by the congress said Roosevelt's reelection will guarantee a policy of prosecution of the war to complete victory; will assure the cooperation between this country and other nations after the war for the preservation of peace and "will further improve the economic conditions of the people with jobs and security for all."

Krzycki predicted Americans of Slavic descent, regardless of party affiliations, will vote for President Roosevelt. "The reactionaries know," he said, "and we know that American Slavs can play an important role in determining the outcome of the presidential elections. This is especially true of the decisive and doubtful states like New York, Pennsylvania, Ohio, Michigan and Illinois, where they are mainly concentrated."

Secretary Harold L. Ickes of the interior is scheduled to address a mass meeting of the convention Sunday afternoon in Schenley park.

BRITISH CHARGE IS INVESTIGATED

London—(AP)—Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower's headquarters disclosed that civilian business men—American, British and others alike—have been banned from the military "forward zone" and added that a "thorough investigation" will be made of assertions the ban has been violated. Supreme headquarters of the allied expeditionary force issued a statement explaining the ban today, but it was known that an order against civilians starting businesses in newly liberated areas was promulgated early this month.

The London Daily Mail raised the question Thursday with charges that American business men were given facilities for travel to England and transfer to France, while British subjects waited in vain for permission to enter France.

The newspaper charged that American representatives of big business were riding into Paris on a "SHEAF" "magic carpet" in uniforms of "comparatively junior officers" and that certain American interests were exploiting military agreements with Britain for purely commercial reasons. Supreme headquarters explained that exceptions to the rule banning travel in the forward zones are civilians accredited by service ministers, by President Roosevelt or Prime Minister Churchill.

Costa Rican Enjoys Visit To Rapids

The most impressive thing about the people of the midwest, and especially Wisconsin, is "their warm hospitality," in the opinion of Sr. Fernando Chavez, Costa Rican exchange student who spent Friday in Wisconsin Rapids and Wood County.

Sr. Chavez, who has completed two terms at Catholic university in Washington, D. C., is studying sociology in the United States, and on a summer tour through the midwest is studying social centers and farm cooperatives. County Agent H. R. Lathrop is his host here in this county, while Vernon Goldsworthy of the Wisconsin Cranberry Sales company Friday showed the Costa Rican how cranberries are harvested in this community. Today the Costa Rican returned to Madison, where Asher Hobson, professor in the University of Wisconsin's college of agriculture, and a rural sociologist of note, is Chavez' host in his trips through this state.

Sr. Chavez is much impressed by evidences he saw in this country of Americans' love for democracy, and by the workings of democracy even during wartime. "To say and write what you wish, to travel through the country without restrictions—that would be impossible in Europe or in any of the dictator nations of South America," he said. Proud of his own nation, a sovereign republic where sugar, bananas and coffee are the chief exportable agricultural products, Chavez pointed out that Costa Rica is one Latin American nation which has a highly workable democracy, where there is a considerable middle class as contrasted to many nations south of the border, where a small land-owning group and a large peasant class make democracy only theoretical.

Costa Rica, too, has no great fear of "Yankee Imperialism," as do many South American countries, although the Costa Rican government is very wary in its contracts with large United States fruit companies. "We welcome the investments from your country because we have not the capital for the large investments in plantations and shipping lines," Chavez said. Costa Rica, by the way, has compulsory school attendance, free education and a very low rate of illiteracy. The population is chiefly Spanish. After his return today to Madison Sr. Chavez will spend October in visiting Minnesota.
