

More Women Workers Are Married Than Single, Few Are Service Wives

BY JAMES MARLOW
Washington—(P)—Married women really have scrambled out on the kitchen and taken jobs.
This year, for the first time, married women workers outnumbered single women workers.
And only a comparatively small part of them were married to service men.
But will married women want to keep on working after the war when veterans come back in millions?
A lot of them will have to hold jobs—in the opinion of the women's bureau of the labor department—and there will be more married women working after the war than before. The bureau says:

More Need to Work

This is the way the women's bureau sees it:
Single women formerly made up the greater part of this country's woman labor force. Now an increasing number of married women have to work. This is a factor in the American economy that cannot be ignored.

Efforts to push the married woman out of the labor market only because she's married, may result in unwarranted family hardship.

In an increasing number of instances here earnings are necessary to support the new home. In many cases she could not marry unless her earnings helped establish the home.

In perhaps more cases she could not marry unless she continued to shoulder her pre-marriage responsibilities in her parents' home.

This is steadily becoming more true because of the increase in the proportion of older persons in the population.

Many Have Quit

Probably a million and a half married women, living at home with their husbands, have quit working during the war.

This indicates that those able to do so in general are likely to return to their homes. But—
Those who remain in their occu-troops advancing among the slag heaps.

Street fighting raged in at least five villages, the farthest of which was five miles from Duren. These were Pier, Merken, Gey, Merode and Schafberg. The Germans employed dug-in tanks and self-propelled guns at Gey.

On the Saarland front to the south, Lt. Gen. George S. Patton's Third army fought amid Siegfried line defenses at Dillingen and Saarlautern, encountering ever stiffening resistance which took on a fanatical character. Tanks and guns fired at the Americans from vantage points inside buildings and factories. Infantry was buried under rubble heaps left in the wake of allied air forces.

Eleven enemy counterattacks have been launched in this area in the past two days. Three came at Dillingen before dawn today. In one of these 85 Germans made a charge shouting "Heil Hitler." Every Nazi was killed.

On Patton's right, the U.S. 7th army captured Hagenau, important communications and supply city 18 miles north of Strasbourg.

Enemy Driven from Kweichow
The Chinese high command announced today that its counterattacking troops had driven the Japanese invaders completely from Kweichow province. Less than 14 days ago the Nipponese were sweeping all before them as they blasted ahead toward the Burma road citadel of Kweichow. They got to within 70 miles of that point before the Chinese hit them.

General Eisenhower says:

"I want more supplies than we are getting..."

and I think the soldier wants more than he is getting, both now and in the future... Unless everyone all the way through the nation, those at the front and those at home, keeps on the job everlastingly and with mounting intensity we are only postponing the day of victory."

Pulpwood Packs Supplies

GENERAL Eisenhower means you when he pleads for more production on the Home Front because pulpwood is now a No. 1 Critical War Shortage and this is a pulpwood-producing area.

According to General Eisenhower, 5,000 rounds of ammunition are being poured into German defenses every minute; 6,000,000 rounds of artillery shells and 2,000,000 rounds of mortar shells are being hurled at the Nazis every month.

Guns Fired With Pulpwood

Eighty percent of the powder that fires these shells is made of pulpwood, and every shell sent overseas is shipped in a carton made of pulpwood.

Don't you "postpone the day of victory". Every hour of peak pulpwood production on the Home Front hastens Victory, and every lagging or wasted hour that could be used in cutting more pulpwood postpones it.
